Wall tile overlap transition

updated 12/17/2020

An overlap transition from wall tile to flooring is a preferred installation method and is utilized in many applications. It is completed by installing the flooring up the wall higher than the specified cove height and installing the wall tile over the sheet flooring. The juncture is then finished with Altro Mastic 100.

This installation technique eliminates the need for a transition strip and offers enhanced security over water ingress.
