The Golden Temple, Amritsar, India

Safety and comfort for nominated World Heritage Site

“This was not a normal installation for Altro but proves the versatility of our safety flooring. Altro Aquarius could not be installed fully, owing to the historic nature of the marble, but is instead rolled out on a daily basis providing a slip-resistant surface for daily prayers.”

Safety and comfort for nominated World Heritage Site

Issue

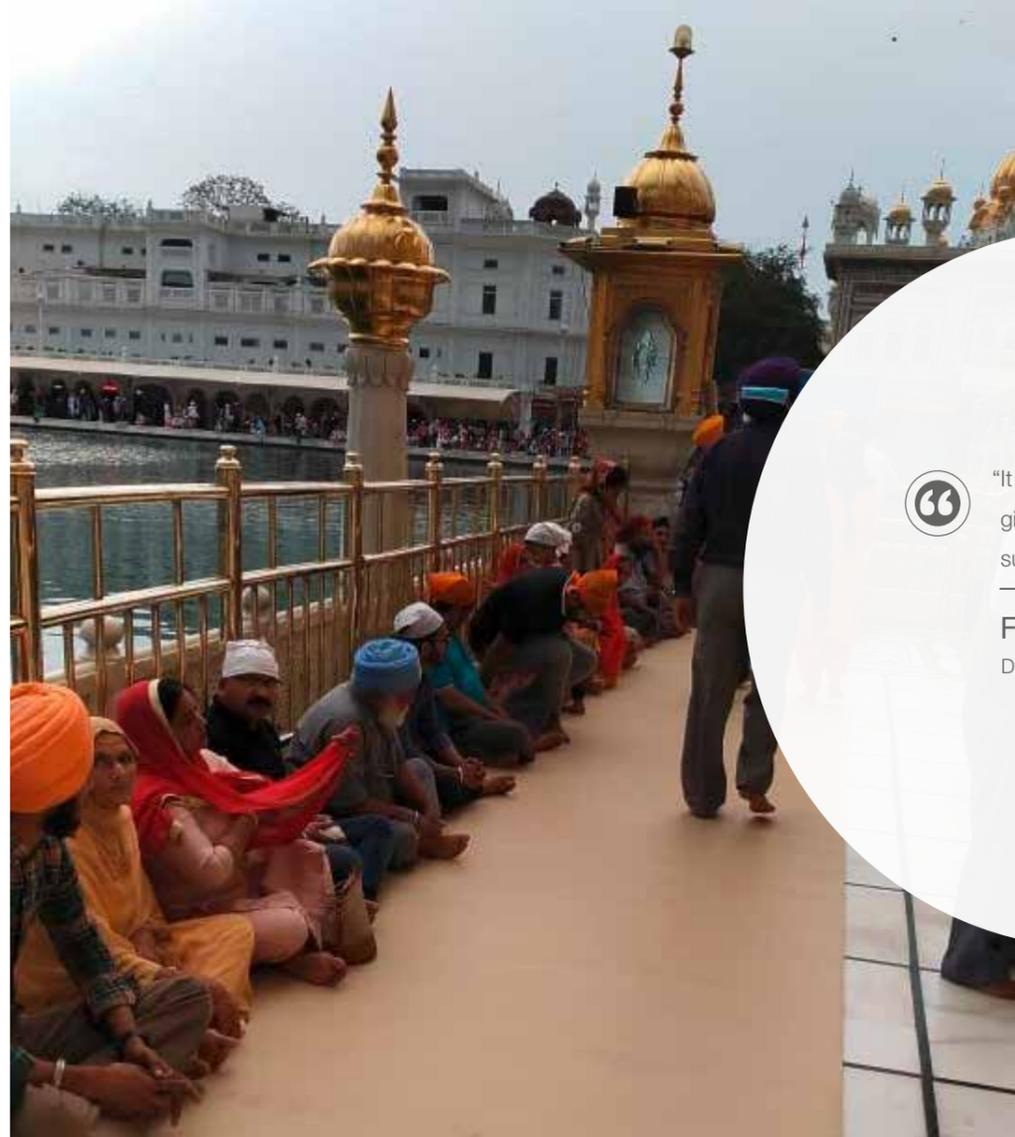

The Golden Temple, also known as Darbar Sahib or Darbār Sahib, meaning “abode of God” and “exalted court” is a gurdwara located in the city of Amritsar, Punjab, India. It is the preeminent spiritual site of Sikhism. Over 100,000 people visit the holy shrine daily for worship and the gurdwara complex has been nominated as a UNESCO World Heritage Site.

Approach

As the temple flooring is made from marble, during the two monsoon seasons the floor becomes very slippery with rain water. This presents a high slip risk for visiting tourists and worshippers. The carpet prayer mats were also being damaged by the rain and, when wet, were uncomfortable for worshippers to use. Owing to its historic importance, the marble floor could not have an adhered safety flooring installed and the temple required a flooring solution that could be used on a temporary basis.

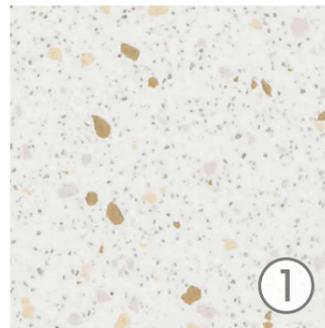

Solution

Altro's distributor partner, Floor Décor, had the opportunity to provide Altro Aquarius, a specialist solution that could offer safety and comfort during the monsoon season. Altro Aquarius is supplied in a roll and was overlaid on the historic marble flooring to benefit the devotees during the monsoons.

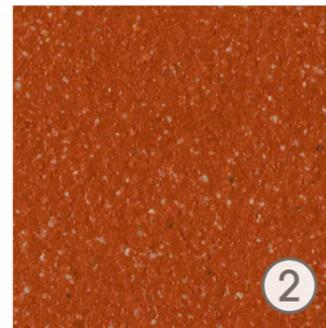

“It is an immense honour to be given this opportunity to us by such a revered place.”
