Fourth School Meal Center

Altro flooring keeping school a step ahead

Nagano, Japan

Japan's school lunch program goes to extraordinary measures to ensure it provides students with prepared lunches daily. Chefs cook nutritious meals for students usually consisting of carbohydrates, lean protein, vegetables and a dessert. The meals are then sent to classrooms where a group of rostered students serves them accordingly. This helps children to get a real world experience and to learn about nutrition, portion control, community and an appreciation for healthy, locally made food.

Being a food production area, meal centers need to provide a high level of hygiene and safety. A kitchen can be a danger zone. With oil and food scraps falling on the floor, slip and fall risks are at an all-time high. It is important to provide a high level of slip resistance and cleanability, which is why management chose Altro Reliance 25 to be the Fourth School Meal Center's flooring solution.

Altro's slip-resistant flooring ranges provide lasting slip resistance, durability and abrasion resistance, along with additional comfort underfoot, ideal for busy catering areas where potential for spills and safety is a major factor. Altro Reliance 25 in particular offers a choice of 26 colors to cover multiple areas with a single solution. It's robust 2.5mm thickness can cope with high levels of foot and wheeled traffic.
